

Editorial

It is impossible to discuss the genesis of the present “Anuario” without evoking the birth of the framework it grew out of, namely the Department of Psychology and later the faculty of Psychology at the University of Barcelona. We need to take a short step back in time at this point. This will make it easier to understand the changes in the evolution of the “Anuario”, which were in fact quite gradual.

We can measure the progress made in a few years by researchers from the Faculty of Psychology to understand the changes in the “Anuario” journal. The first step was to translate and assimilate all important findings by foreign researchers and put them into practice in our social, political and economic environment.

We consider that the second step, in order to be up-to-date, consists of making a recognized contribution to international Psychology. This is the aim of the present “Anuario”. Now is the moment to request contributions from other Universities and Institutions of Psychological research, and above all, fulfill our aspirations to the revival of a useful instrument for communication from psychological research in accordance with present orientations and standards.

We need to make a great effort to maintain a general journal with a high degree of methodological quality, social interest and original contributions which may be referred to in other works by different authors. This is what we offer as a contribution to psychological research.

We hope you will find these objectives achieved in our new U.B. Journal of Psychology.
